Asterisk is an easy-to-use lightweight fax server for enterprise and small-office use. It is designed as a fax server for easy integration into existing messaging infrastructure, without the need to manually provision fax devices or learn new fax server solutions. Asterisk is fully integrated with third-party fax solutions, including Microsoft Exchange, Microsoft Office 365, and Asterisk Unified Messaging. For example, users can receive faxes directly in Outlook. Asterisk provides full fax management, an in-box page, and text-only interfaces for clients. Asterisk can integrate with a variety of IP PBXs, allowing SIP and PSTN signaling for all supported phone devices and fax devices. Key features Asterisk supports all protocols: IEEE 1394, PacketFlux, RSVP, AMI, SIP, and many more. Asterisk is an inexpensive and compact solution for business users. Lightweight and simple to deploy. Asterisk is designed for small- to medium-size organizations. Fax Service can be installed directly in Asterisk by using the Interactive Installation wizard. Any existing fax service or hardware can be used with Asterisk. Compliant with the RFC 2326 protocol. Asterisk is based on the same RFC 2326 protocol and supports the PSTN and IP protocol of the telco market. PHP is installed as the default language. PHP can be changed to another language or system by using a simple configuration file. Asterisk is compatible with the following features: Automatically determine the incoming and outgoing fax telephone numbers when an incoming fax is sent or an outgoing fax is received. For example, it can detect the 1-800 number of a called party when a call is answered by voicemail. Automatically cancel a fax session when the called party disconnects. Automatically move a fax to a specified mailbox in an Exchange server when an incoming fax arrives. Automatically export fax to a PSTN fax device in the Enterprise Edition. Automatically export fax to a PSTN fax device in the Basic Edition. Automatically export fax to a SIP device in the Basic Edition. Automatically export fax to a SIP device in the Enterprise Edition. Automatically export fax to a SIP device in the Vigor Edition. Automatically import fax from a SIP or PSTN device in the Basic Edition.
